The Snowdonia Parc Cenedlaethol

Snowdonia, a land carved by glaciers and bathed in mystery will draw you back time and time again. The 19th century traveller George Borrow wrote: 'Perhaps in all the world there is no region more picturesquely beautiful.' The thousands of visitors who return each year to enjoy the spectacular scenery agree.

Snowdonia is Wales' first and largest national park and the second biggest in England and Wales. Set up in 1951, Parc Cenedlaethol Eryri or Snowdonia National Park as it is known in English, covers more than 840 square miles (2,175 sq km) of rugged mountains, mysterious lakes, magical rivers, wild moorlands and varied coastline.

Snowdonia – a magical, mystical place where romance is never far away.

Llynnoedd Pysgota Cregennan Cregennan Fishing Lakes

It forms a huge, high landscape, stretching southwards from Snowdon as far as Aberdyfi and Machynlleth, eastwards to Bala, northwards to Conwy and borders the Llŷn Peninsula and Cambrian Coast in the west. All of the classic mountain ranges are here – Snowdon itself, together with Tryfan, Y Glyderau, Y Carneddau, Y Moelydd, Aran, Arennig and Cader Idris and the beautiful estuaries of the Dwyryd, Mawddach and Dyfi rivers. The National Park Visitor Centres are located at Aberdyfi, Beddgelert, Blaenau Ffestiniog, Betws-y-Coed, Dolgellau and Harlech.

Yr Wyddfa, or Snowdon in English - dominates the park. The breathtaking view from its summit, taking in most of North Wales and even Ireland on a clear day, has attracted climbers and walkers alike throughout the centuries. Llanberis, located at the foot of Snowdon and the craggy Llanberis Pass, with its twin lakes and mountain railway, is a well-located and popular climbing and walking base.

Although mountains dominate the landscape, Snowdonia has its gentler side and there are a number of pleasant walks and cycleways within the National Park. The lush Vale of Conwy is green and fertile with easy walking along the paths of the Gwydyr Forest. There are also gentle walks in the sheltered Vale of Ffestiniog and the leafy glades of the Coed y Brenin Forest.

The dramatic landscape and wildlife importance of the area are recognised both nationally and internationally in the form of various designations. For instance, Snowdonia has more National Nature Reserves than any other National Park in Britain.

Bird watching is popular as the area is home to many nationally and internationally rare species such as the peregrine falcon and merlin. Also present, but rarely seen, are the beautiful rainbow coloured Snowdon Beetle (Chrysolina cerealis) and Snowdon Lily (Lloydia serotina) which is found nowhere else in Britain.

All of the work carried out by the National Park Authority aims to protect important landscapes, habitats and wildlife, some of them very rare, as well as safeguarding the Welsh language and culture by helping to create work for local people through various schemes which it administers.

To the summit of Snowdon

The most popular and easiest walk to the summit of Snowdon is the Llanberis Path following the Snowdon Mountain Railway from the village. The path climbs from 104 metres to 1085 metres and will take approximately 3 hours with breathtaking views all the way. The descent will take about 1-2 hours.

The other five paths promoted by the National Park Authority on Snowdon are: Miners Track; Pyg Track; Rhyd Ddu Path; Snowdon Ranger, Watkin Path.

A breathtaking 300 kilometre stretch of award-winning coastline extends from picturesque Aberdyfi to the south, along the Llŷn Peninsula, most of which has been designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty and Heritage Coast, to Conwy in the north. The coastal paths can be enjoyed by the keen or leisurely walker taking in delightful resorts such as Criccieth, Llanbedrog, Abersoch and Aberdaron. The North Wales Path follows the coast and lower mountain slopes between Prestatyn and Bangor with splendid views and much of interest along the route including the Druid's Circle above Penmaenmawr and the spectacular Aber falls near Llanfairfechan.

The area is extremely popular with water sport enthusiasts and many sailing regattas and competitions are held at the marinas and harbours of Pwllheli, Caernarfon, Conwy, Porthmadog, Aberdyfi and Barmouth. International Yachting Competitions are held at Pwllheli and the popular Wakestock wakeboarding and music festival at Abersoch. The entire Cambrian and Llŷn Peninsula coast is a sailor's paradise with a centre of excellence in sailing at Pwllheli. Its popular marina draws in the boats whilst Felinheli and Conwy marinas further up the coast also offer excellent facilities. From sailing and water-skiing to surfing, rock-pooling or fishing, the ever-changing coast has everything to offer. People through the centuries have been fascinated with water. In Snowdonia, rugged mountain ranges sweeping down to quiet coves and beautiful sandy bays come alive with breathtaking waterfalls, natural lakes, estuaries, rivers and streams.

Visit spectacular waterfalls such as the popular Swallow Falls near Betws-y-Coed, a tourist mecca, or the dramatic Aber Falls, at Abergwyngregyn, between Llanfairfechan and Bangor, which are the highest in North Wales at just under 100 feet (over 30m). Penmachno in the Conwy Valley provides a base from which to explore the Conwy and Machno Falls. The rivers Glaslyn and Colwyn meet in the quaint and legendary village of Beddgelert, home to the grave of Llywelyn the Great's faithful hound Gelert.

Snowdonia and water – the two are synonymous.

Snowdonia has more than a 100 lakes, all with their own distinct character and setting, from Llyn Ogwen in the north to Tal y Llyn in the south. Wales' largest natural lake Llyn Tegid, in Bala, stretches out gracefully between the high peaks of Aran Benllyn, Arenig Fawr and the spectacular Berwyn mountains. The Bala Lake Railway, one of the Great Little Trains of Wales, runs along the lake's shores throughout the holiday season. A boat trip on Trawsfynydd lake will give you an insight into the area's folklore as well as a view of the location of Camelot as seen in the film First Knight.

In contrast Tal y Llyn with its exquisite calm and beauty nestles between dramatically steep mountain slopes. Lakes, some natural and others reservoirs, fill valleys and hollows high above the picturesque spa village of Trefriw in the Conwy Valley. For the angler Llyn Crafnant is well stocked with trout whilst Llyn Geirionydd attracts many watersport enthusiasts. The glacial lakes of Gwynant and Ogwen and the fishing lake of Cregennan, are also stunningly beautiful.

Caernarfon, Conwy and Harlech, from their coastal vantage points, are amongst the best preserved mediaeval fortresses in Britain and are designated World Heritage Sites. Along Conwy Bay, Penmaenmawr's promenade contrasts with the mediaeval walled town of Conwy itself, which is arguably Wales' best example of living archaeology. On the quayside, in the shadows of Conwy's majestic ramparts, is the smallest house in Britain.

Culture, language

Hanes, iaith

You can get a real feel for Wales in Snowdonia where a warm, genuine welcome awaits you. Unlike other holiday destinations where tourism dominates, the land is more than just a landscape. It provides a living for thousands of people with agriculture still being one of the major industries. Communities are close knit and represent the heartland of the Welsh language - up to 72 per cent speak Welsh. A tradition of hospitality combined with an unique culture, rich history, myth and legend make the area irresistible.

Welcome to the warm heart of Snowdonia.

Canolfan Iaith Nant Gwrtheyrn - Welsh Language Centre

Welsh, a direct descendent of a language once spoken throughout most of the British Isles, has survived for thousands of years and shares common roots with other Celtic communities in Cornwall and Brittany. It is at the heart of the nation's heritage, in the poetry, music and song of the bards (minstrels and poets of ancient times) and in the Tales of the Mabinogion. These stories of history and magic from the Dark Ages have been passed down from generation to generation and recorded in manuscript form. Today both culture and language are actively nurtured by centres such as the scenic Nant Gwrtheyrn which is an old mining village now completely dedicated as a residential National Language and Culture Centre.

The landscape has a dramatic quality that echoes its history – the rugged hills and mountains battle with the elements in the same way that the Welsh Princes fought with the Anglo Norman monarchs. The dominantly dramatic castles along the coast are truly impressive with Caernarfon, Conwy and Harlech, built by Edward I, being some of the finest mediaeval castles in Britain. However, the mountain-locked strongholds of the last native Princes of Gwynedd, have a particularly magical atmosphere of their own. Dolwyddelan between Blaenau Ffestiniog and Betws-y-Coed is said to be the birthplace of Llywelyn the Great, the most powerful mediaeval Prince of Wales. Castell-y-Bere inland from Tywyn in the south has an air of mystery whilst Dolbadarn is also beautifully located overlooking Llyn Padarn in Llanberis.

Earlier remains include the excavations at Segontium, an important fort built by the Romans at Caernarfon and the Iron Age hill fort of Dinas Emrys at Beddgelert. On the Llŷn Peninsula, the numerous stone hut remains of Tre'r Ceiri high up in the Eifl mountains are unforgettable - the whole of the peninsula and beyond can be viewed from the summit. The mystical Bardsey Island or Isle of '20,000 Saints' lies at the very tip. This holy island called Ynys Enlli in Welsh was an important destination for pilgrims (apparently three pilgrimages here equalled one to Rome) and many of them came to die and be buried there. A Pilgrim's Route extends along the north coastline.

Stone circles, castles, standing stones and ancient pilgrims' trails all add to that combination of history and living heritage which makes the region a special place to visit.

Snowdonia is more than a perfect playground. The genuine hospitality offered in the various hotels, farmhouses, guest-houses, self-catering accommodation and camping sites of the region, hand in hand with quality produce, products and entertainment ensure a memorable stay - whatever the time of year.

Agriculture is still a major industry and it is the healthy, natural food produced in the region that helps to give Snowdonia some of the very best places to eat in Wales. Welsh lamb and beef, raised on the green grass of the uplands, are renowned, and so too are the local speciality cheeses. Of course, there's superb seafood as well – lobster, crab and sea bass – freshly gathered from the Irish Sea, or Conwy mussels which flourish in the estuary of the River Conwy.

Snowdonia – get a taste of a different way of life.

Pwllheli

The small towns and markets of the area cater well for the keen shopper with a wide range of independent specialist shops whilst many of the area's attractions sell local crafts ranging from slate to wool. Slate goods are available throughout the region but the award-winning Llechwedd Slate Caverns near Blaenau Ffestiniog, the Welsh Slate Museum in Llanberis and Llanfair Slate Caverns - where some of the film First Knight was filmed, all have excellent craft shops. Visitors are also provided with a choice of souvenirs in the woollen mills of the area such as Bryncir Mill near Porthmadog, Meirion Mill in Dinas Mawddwy and Trefriw in the Conwy Valley where classic Welsh cloth, flannel and tapestries are still woven.

There's no shortage of entertainment here either in theatres, cinemas, clubs, discos, local pubs and even village halls. Take in a show or play at Llandudno's North Wales Theatre, Theatr Gwynedd at Bangor or Harlech's Theatr Ardudwy. Current films are shown in the cinemas at Bangor, Pwllheli and Porthmadog.

Whilst Snowdonia has been described by the Rough Guide as 'the most dramatic and alluring region in Wales' the area is also a perfect playground for all tastes and capabilities.

Snowdonia is the place for walking holidays. Snowdon itself, at 3,560 feet (1,085m), is obviously the prime destination for many. The most popular paths are the routes following the Snowdon Mountain Railway from Llanberis, from Capel Curig and from Pen-y-Pass. However, there are many more mountain ranges which are just as beautiful and challenging including Y Glyderau, Rhinogs, Cader Idris and Tryfan.

Get out into the clean fresh air of Snowdonia – there's so much to do !

Quadbiking, Parc Glasfryn Activity Centre

Gentler walks, through the forests and woodlands of Dolgellau and Betws-y-Coed and the passes at Tal y Llyn and Aberglaslyn are just some of the many alternatives whilst the area boasts a network of traffic-free cycling and walking routes. Lôn Las Ogwen follows the River Cegin inland from Bangor to Tregarth whilst Lôn Las Peris meanders lazily along the sheltered shore of Llyn Padarn in Llanberis. The popular Lôn Eifion stretching between Caernarfon and the village of Bryncir is a beautiful green avenue of native trees and Lôn Las Menai running between historic Caernarfon and the village of Y Felinheli provides a glimpse of the Isle of Anglesey.

Mountain bikers should head for Coed-y-Brenin, the award-winning forest centre near Dolgellau, which boasts the best purpose-built tracks, such as the Red Bull, in the UK - if not Europe. The Gwydyr Forest near Betws-y-Coed also has miles of brand new trails. For those cyclists who prefer their sport a little less structured, there are many way-marked routes to be tackled, including the Conwy Valley cycle route and the Sustrans National Cycle Network routes 5 and 8. The scenic and traffic free, recreational routes along the coast are popular with families.

Glorious natural lakes, rivers and waterfalls provide all kinds of opportunities to get on the water whether it's white water rafting on the River Tryweryn near Bala or fishing for salmon and trout on the Dyfi or Tal y Llyn Lake. There can be few areas where there is such diversity for anglers. You might wish to learn some new boating skills on Llyn Tegid.

Canoeing, for sport or recreation, is also a favourite – some of the toughest challenges are at the Conwy Falls. Noteworthy are the award winning Tryweryn National Whitewater Centre near Bala and Plas Menai National Watersports Centre.

The hills make excellent horse riding country and there are many pony trekking opportunities for all the family throughout the Llŷn Peninsula and National Park. The stunning scenery also forms a backdrop to some of the most challenging and spectacular golf courses in Wales. From the challenging links at Nefyn, Aberdyfi and Conwy to the famous Royal St David's at Harlech, golfers are well served with a total of 17 courses and three driving ranges providing all kinds of challenges from seaside links to parkland.

The whole area also offers activities such as clay shooting, quad biking, hawking and even skiing at Trawsfynydd's dry ski slope as well as a range of indoor activities at Snowdonia's many leisure centres. Various activity packages, including walking, cycling and water sports are available from many hotels and guest houses in the regions - look for the walking/cycling symbol.

More Routes to Ride

To further promote cycling in Wales a number of cycling hubs are being developed. Circular day rides of ranging lengths and difficulty are being created from Pwllheli and Dolgellau. These will compliment the other routes we have in place which include the Mawddach Trail, Lôn Las Eifion, Coed-y-Brenin, Gwydyr and Beddgelert Forest.

To view the breathtaking scenery in a very special way why not try the numerous narrow gauge railways in the area. In fact there must be few places in Europe that boast as many small railways to fire the enthusiasm as Wales. Most, like Tal y Llyn and Llanberis Lake Railways, were originally built to carry slate from the inland quarries down to the nearby ports and then on to roof much of the world. Today, however, you can just sit back and enjoy the stunning scenery. The Ffestiniog terminates near the Llechwedd Slate Caverns whilst The Welsh Highland, Bala Lake and Corris Railways all have their own unique character. Best known, of course, is the Snowdon Mountain Railway, Llanberis.

Families are also well catered for. For the very young visit Hwylfan Fun Centre at Caernarfon but for great adventure days out visit Hafan y Môr near Pwllheli with its exciting rides and subtropical waterworld and the Greenwood Forest Park, near Caernarfon for a variety of fun activities. There are also butterfly farms and farm parks but hard to beat is the sheer enjoyment of open spaces at Country Parks such as Padarn and Glynllifon near Llandwrog. Activities such as quad biking and go-karts are available at Parc Glasfryn Activity Centre near Pwllheli and you can ski at Rhiw Goch Mountain Bike and Ski Centre, Trawsfynydd.

Gradings and Symbols

All the accommodation in this publication has been fully inspected and graded for quality on an annual basis. The accommodation complies with the Wales Tourist Board's own grading schemes or those of the AA and RAC, two long-established organisations of high repute. Star grades mean that you can be sure of standards and choose the accommodation that's just right for you.

Hotels, Guest Houses and Farmhouses

Wales Tourist Board STARS are your guide to QUALITY. They tell you what you really want to know about places to stay. Places which score highly will have an especially welcoming atmosphere and pleasing ambience, high levels of comfort and guest care, and attractive surroundings enhanced by thoughtful design and attention to detail. Here's the quality rating:

★★★★★ Exceptional
★★★★ Excellent
★★★ Very Good
★★ Good
★ Fair to Good

The WTB's grading scheme also spells out the style of accommodation - HOTEL, INN, FARM and so on - so that you have a good idea of the range of facilities on offer.

PLEASE NOTE:
FARMS offer Guest House or B&B accommodation on a working farm.
You will see the categories COUNTRY HOTEL and COUNTRY HOUSE in the accommodation listings. The latter offers non-hotel style accommodation.
It's important to bear in mind that the WTB Star Grade takes into account the nature of the property and expectation of the guests - so a farmhouse is just as entitled to Five Stars as a country hotel, as long as what it offers is of the highest quality.

AA/RAC GRADING SCHEMES

AA ★★★ Hotel — RAC ★★★★★
Both schemes rate Hotels from one to five stars.

AA ♦♦♦♦ Guest Accommodation — RAC ♦♦♦♦ Guest Accommodation
For Guest Houses and other small establishments, one to five diamonds are used.

Please bear in mind that these schemes are based more on the provision of facilities and services than the WTB star grades, which are based primarily on quality.

AWARD
The GUEST HOUSE OR FARMHOUSE AWARD is given to places where an especially high level of customer care can be expected.

WALKERS AND CYCLISTS WELCOME
The 2 symbols are given to places which are especially well equipped for welcoming walkers and cyclists.

Archebu

Holiday Cottages

As with hotels and guest houses, the Wales Tourist Board uses STARS to denote QUALITY at self-catering accommodation. Here's the quality rating:

★★★★★ Exceptional
★★★★ Excellent
★★★ Very Good
★★ Good
★ Fair to Good

All Three, Four and Five Star accommodation will be entirely self-contained.

WASCO - Guests are assured of a warm welcome and quality accommodation with the Wales Association of Self-Catering Operators.

Caravan and Camping

STARS also apply to caravan & camping parks, the grade reflecting the overall QUALITY of the park.
Here's the quality rating:

★★★★★ Exceptional
★★★★ Excellent
★★★ Very Good
★★ Good
★ Fair to Good

STYLE OF PARK - To help you make the right choice, each park is categorised as one of the following:

HOLIDAY PARK - for holiday caravans, but may also provide touring/camping facilities

CAMPING PARK - for tented accommodation only

TOURING PARK - for touring caravans and possibly camping; no static holiday caravans (please note: touring parks listed in this publication may be WTB and/or AA graded)

DRAGON AWARD WINNERS - For excellence in individual caravan accommodation, ask for a caravan which has won the Wales Tourist Board Dragon Award. The caravan will be something special, with a bath or shower and toilet and many extras such as colour TV and heating.

DAFFODIL AWARD WINNERS - This award recognises excellence in touring caravan parks. All award winners must have at least Four Stars (or be working towards that grade) with high standards of landscaping, good lighting levels at night, etc.

General Information

WELCOME HOST - the Wales Tourist Board's Welcome Host scheme is part of a tradition of friendliness. This customer care scheme, open to everyone from hotel staff to taxi drivers, places the emphasis on hospitality and first-class service. There are three categories:

GOLD At least 90% of staff are participants
SILVER At least 75% of staff are participants
BRONZE At least 50% of staff are participants

ACTIVITY HOLIDAYS - High standards also apply to your safety. Every operator featured in this publication is inspected under the Wales Tourist Board's accreditation scheme for activities, or have a statutory licence from the Adventure Activities Licensing Authority (AALA). All operators and providers must abide by a Code of Conduct that describes good practice and procedures for the activity in question. By its very nature, participation in any activity will involve an element of risk. The WTB cannot guarantee that participants will be free from injury or other misfortune. Nevertheless, its accreditation and inspection schemes attempt to minimise that risk.

A TASTE OF WALES - Look out for this symbol in the accommodation section. It signifies membership of a scheme, A Taste of Wales-Blas ar Gymru, that promotes the use of Welsh produce and high standards of cooking and service. All establishments are inspected annually for quality.

ACCOMMODATING VISITORS WITH DISABILITIES - Accommodation providers can decide if they wish to be graded for access by wheelchair users.

Accessible to a wheelchair user travelling independently
Accessible to a wheelchair user travelling with assistance
Accessible to a wheelchair user able to walk a few paces and up a maximum of three steps

PLEASE NOTE: When booking, please check that the establishment of your choice meets your requirements.

ANY PROBLEMS?

At the time of the assessment, all premises met with the standard required for the Wales Tourist Board quality grade indicated in this publication. The WTB cannot be held responsible for any deficiencies in standards and quality of service which manifest themselves after the assessment has taken place. We nevertheless care about your stay in Wales, so if you are dissatisfied with the accommodation in any way please contact the owner or manager of the business at the time of your stay so that matters can be put right.

Unfortunately, the WTB is only able to consider an investigation of complaint about accommodation if you have previously raised the matter with the proprietor or manager. If you have already taken this action but do not feel satisfied with the outcome, please send details of your complaint to our Trade and Consumer Relations Department (see 'Please Note' on page 26 for address) within 14 days of your visit, where possible including the name of the person to whom you referred your complaint in the first instance. The WTB is not in a position to provide compensation where customers have been unable to resolve any such disputes.

If you refer your complaint to the WTB for investigation, we retain the right to use the complaint as we consider appropriate, which may include passing a copy to the proprietor concerned.

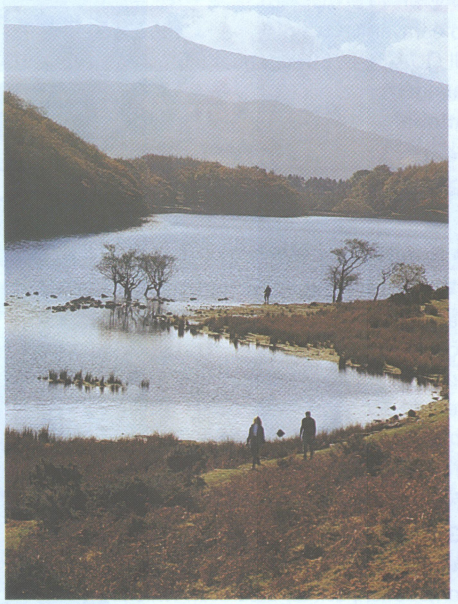
Gentler and greener than its rocky, northern neighbour, southern Snowdonia is just as inspiring. From lofty Cader Idris - "Arthur's Chair" in English – to Bala, where Llyn Tegid is the biggest natural lake in Wales, the region and its many distinctive villages and small towns falls mainly within the Snowdonia National Park.

Llyn Tegid Lake, Bala

Y Bala - "Calon Cynnes Cymru - The Warm Heart of Wales" - is a popular touring town with a colourful Welsh history and there is a four and a half mile long lake - Llyn Tegid – popular for watersports. The Bala Lake narrow gauge railway skirts the lake shore. An area noted for its natural beauty and Welsh culture. Welsh emigrants to Patagonia in Argentina came mainly from Bala and even today the Welsh-speaking communities they founded there survive. The National White Water Centre nearby offers world-class canoeing and whitewater rafting. There is also an Urdd Welsh youth centre at Glanllyn. Bala was host to the World Sheep Dog Trials in 2002.

Corris - this former mining area is prettier than most, and offers tourist attractions including a modern architect designed Craft Centre and King Arthurs Labyrinth complete with a Floral Maze. Visit the Railway Museum and take a trip on the newly opened Corris Railway. Just down the road pay a visit to the Internationally known Centre for Alternative Technology or fish the peaceful Tal y Llyn Lake.

Dinas Mawddwy – once a major centre for the Welsh wool industry and still home to one of the best known woollen mills. The highest summit outside the main Snowdon range - Aran Fawddwy - can be climbed from here. There is excellent fishing too, for sewin, salmon and trout.



Dolgellau - Llyn Cynwch & Cader Idris

Dolgellau - a picturesque market town at the head of the Mawddach estuary, where the Welsh language and traditions are still very strong, also makes an excellent centre for touring. The buildings are mainly of local slate and there are a number of excellent walks. Cader Idris (2927ft – 878 m), which overlooks the town, is not a mountain for beginners - legend has it that anyone who sleeps the night on the summit will wake up blind, mad or a poet ! Coed y Brenin – the King's Forest – and its forest centre which offers world-class mountain biking on the Forest Enterprise Wales – Red Bull trail are within easy reach.

Tourism Growth Area - Development for the future
The Bala, Dolgellau and Trawsfynydd area has been designated a Special Interest Tourism Growth Area by the Wales Tourist Board. The aim is to build on its strengths in activity and cultural tourism.

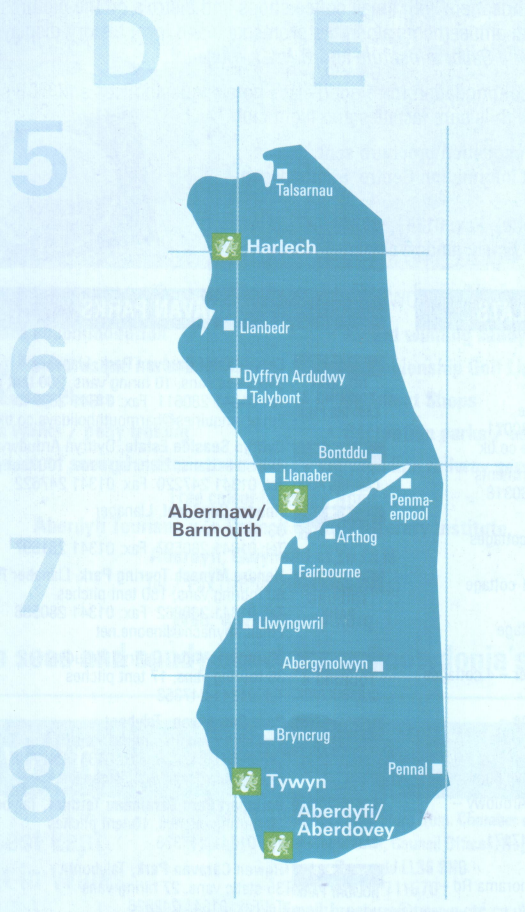
Bae Ceredigion



From 'one of the greenest corners of Wales' in the Dyfi Valley to spectacularly sited Harlech Castle, the northern Cardigan Bay coastline is a treat. It has some of the finest, award winning beaches in Wales and its estuaries take some beating too!

Whether you're looking for sailing or sight-seeing, walking or lazing on the sands this area may not have the soaring peaks of the Snowdon range, but it more than makes up for it in prettiness.

Aberdyfi Aberdovey

Aberdyfi – the prettiest resort on the coast. Popular too, especially with dinghy sailors, wind surfers and golfers. The town's shipbuilding days are remembered in a maritime exhibition in the tourist office on the quay.

Barmouth – where the mountains come down to the sea - made popular by the railways, Barmouth's lively seafront and sandy beach make it a family favourite. There's a lifeboat museum, the Tŷ Gwyn Museum and Tŷ Crwn Roundhouse – a lock-up used to keep drunken sailors out of harm's way in the 1700s. Barmouth won 'Wales in Bloom' small landscaping section award 2002.

Dyffryn Ardudwy – a traditional Welsh village, but close by are Cors y Gedol Burial Chamber, the Roman Steps and the Dyfryn Ardudwy Burial Chamber.

Fairbourne – at the mouth of the Mawddach estuary has one of the finest beaches in Wales – and the Fairbourne Railway, a one-foot gauge train that links in with a passenger ferry to cross the estuary.

Cwrs Golff Glan y Môr Pencampwriaethol, Royal St David's, Harlech Championship Links Golf Course, Royal St David's, Harlech

Harlech – the dramatically sited castle overshadows a small pleasant town with good views of the surrounding countryside. There's a fine beach too and a public swimming pool and Royal St. David's golf course. With an eye for the Arts, look out for the Dispersed Gallery and Sculpture Trail, or while away an evening at the Theatre.

Llanbedr – this quaint village with its narrow stone bridge and impressive houses is the gateway to Shell Island. Easy access to nature trails and tumbling rivers at the foot of the Rhinog Mountains.

Tywyn – well sited to tour the Tal y llyn and Dysynni valleys, Tywyn is the base for the Tal y llyn Railway, the world's first volunteer run railway which takes visitors up to the Bryn Eglwys quarry at Nant Gwernol. Slate from this quarry was used to roof the Hall at the Palace of Westminster.

Llwyngwril – has a 16th century church and its sheltered beach provides safe bathing and rock pools for children. The ancient mountain road above the village runs to Dolgellau and south to the Dysynni Valley and Bird Rock.

Please see page 9 for a list of award winning beaches.

BARMOUTH – A European Blue Flag Resort

Barmouth – with its spectactular hinterland and magnificent sandy beaches is hard to beat for the traditional family seaside holiday, an activity holiday or just a short break. The hills and valleys of southern Snowdonia provide a rich variety of experiences for the nature lover.

The region's outstanding natural beauty is widely recognised and it is fitting that the first piece of land acquired by the National Trust was Dinas Oleu above Barmouth. The area abounds with walks to suit every taste and was a favourite with the 18th century poets Wordsworth, Ruskin and others.

Barmouth town has a lively bustling atmosphere with small coffee shops and bistro's on the picturesque harbourside. There are donkey rides and amusements along the promenade and local history displayed in the medieval Round House, Ty Gwyn, The Sailor's Institute and R.N.L.I. museum.

Barmouth hosts a wide selection of accommodation from good class hotels, guesthouses and B&B's to furnished cottages and caravan parks with leisure facilities and night club.

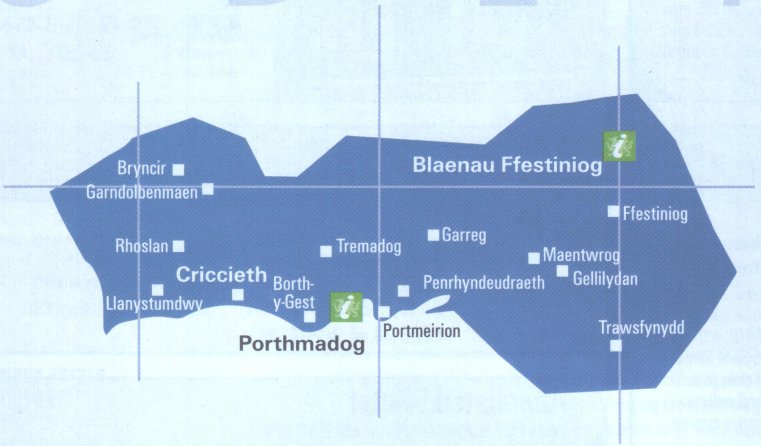
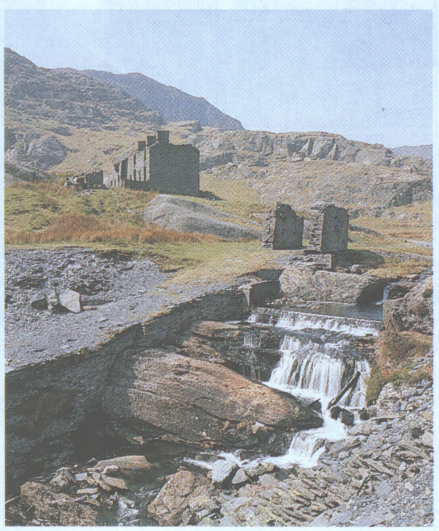
Porthmadog a Dyffryn Ffestiniog



Beach, town and country come together in this gateway region to the north and west. Central to the hub is Porthmadog itself, with the Ffestiniog Valley winding its way from the town back up into Snowdonia proper.

From the holiday resorts of the coast to the inland slate workings this region has history and traditional holiday fun too.

Blaenau Ffestiniog – the former 'slate capital' of the world. The Ffestiniog Railway terminates here and the Llechwedd Slate Caverns give a unique opportunity to experience the life of turn of the century quarrymen.

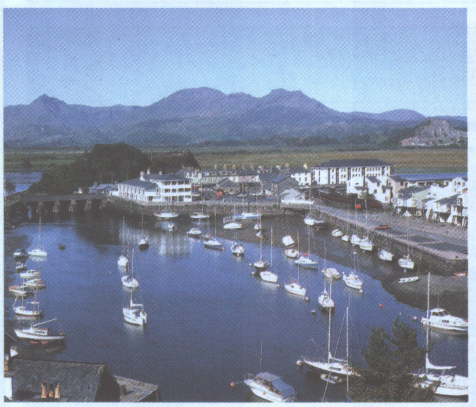


Hen Chwarel Lechi Cwmorthin ger Blaenau Ffestiniog
Old Slate Quarry at Cwmorthin near Blaenau Ffestiniog

Borth-y-Guest – a mile (1.6km) south of Porthmadog has a pretty harbour, which once served the boat builders who used to work here, and fine views of the estuary.

Criccieth – The crumpled castle – sacked by Owain Glyndŵr – gives good views over Cardigan Bay, and the town's sand and shingle beach. Long terraces of guesthouses are a legacy of the arrival of the rail line and Victorian holidaymakers. Criccieth won 'Wales in Bloom' large village section 2002.

Porthmadog – home of the Ffestiniog and Welsh Highland Railway, this busy town was once the busiest slate port in Wales. It's named after William Alexander Madocks who reclaimed 1000 acres of the estuary and built the mile-long embankment - the Cob – across the estuary mouth. There's a pottery, car museum and maritime museum as well.



Porthmadog

Portmeirion – home of The Prisoner and one of the area's best known attractions, Clough Williams Ellis' Italianate village is a 'must do'.

Morfa Bychan – is most famous for Black Rock Sands, where you can drive your car onto two miles (3.2km) of golden beach.

Tremadog – just inland from Porthmadog, and also named by the early 19th century entrepreneur, has an impressive town square surrounded by substantial stone-built houses.

Trawsfynydd – in the foothills of the Rhinog mountains boasts fishing and boat trips on the lake, tours of the power station and even a dry ski slope!

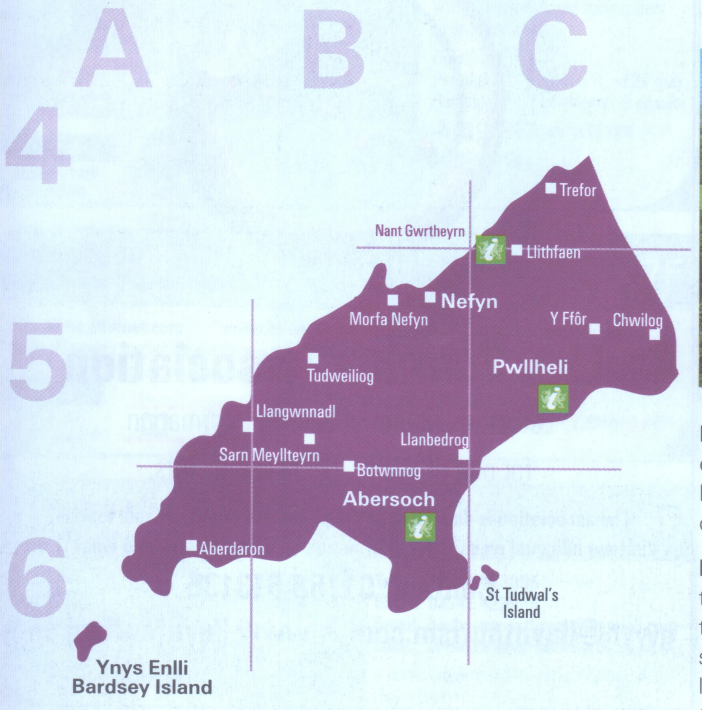
Pen Llŷn



The Llŷn is not only the most secluded part of Wales, it is arguably the prettiest too. The fact that 180 kilometres of the shoreline has been designated as an 'Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty' and Heritage Coast speaks volumes for the Llŷn's untamed beauty.

The 24 mile long peninsula jutting out into the Irish Sea divides Cardigan Bay from Caernarfon Bay and is littered with ancient sites, reminders of the pilgrim route to Bardsey Island at its tip. Take a boat ride out to Bardsey Island from Pwllheli or Porthmeudwy which is near Aberdaron to see the rare plants, birds and rich marine life.

Aberdaron – just two miles from the end of the peninsula this former fishing village was the last stop for pilgrims to the 6th century monastery on Bardsey. RS Thomas, the Welsh poet, lived in a cottage in the grounds of Plas yn Rhiw, a Regency manor house now run by the National Trust.

Aberdaron

Abersoch – is one of the best known dinghy sailing centres in Wales as well as a busy seaside resort. There's a good harbour, beach and excellent choice of accommodation.

Llanbedrog

Llanbedrog – this pretty village also has an excellent beach and is a good centre for walks. It is also home to one of Wales' oldest arts centres, Oriel Plas Glyn y Weddw.

Llithfaen – the former slate village and 'ghost town' of Nant Gwrtheyrn - which is also home to a newly developed interpretation centre from spring 2003, nearby is now a centre for Welsh language studies. Just behind the village are the prehistoric remains of Tre'r Ceiri, a hillfort made up of 150 dry-stone hut circles behind an encircling wall that is 12 feet high in places.

Nefyn – and nearby Tudweiliog on the quieter northern coast overlook sweeping bays. Nefyn has a small maritime museum and a challenging 27 hole golf course.

Nefyn

Porth Dinllaen – a mile to the west of Nefyn lost in its bid to be the terminal for Irish ferries in 1839. The village, together with a mile of beach, is now owned by the National Trust.

Porth Neigwl – or 'Hell's Mouth' nr Abersoch, one of the best places to surf in Wales.

Porth Oer – nr Aberdaron, the 'Whistling Sands' squeak as you walk across this safe, clean and secluded bay.

Pwllheli – the capital of the Llŷn is the main market (on Wednesdays) town for the area and also has a modern marina which hosts international sailing events. The town has a well-equipped leisure centre and Pennarth Fawr mediaeval house is nearby.

Sarn – centrally located this village offers good access to all parts of the Llŷn.

Please see page 9 for a list of award winning beaches.

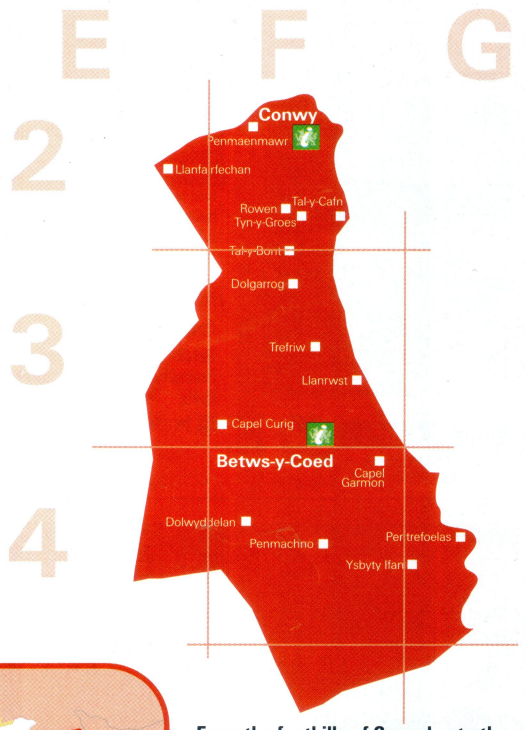
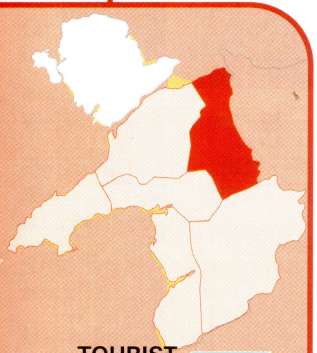
Dyffryn Conwy





From the foothills of Snowdon to the coast the Conwy Valley is one of contrasts. The gorges and waterfalls at its head tumble down to fertile farmland which follows the valley floor to Conwy itself – one of the best examples of a mediaeval walled town in the UK.

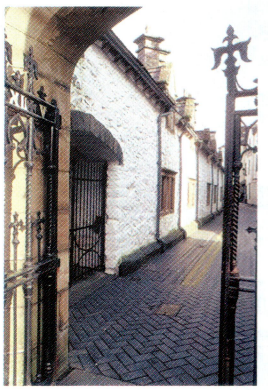
There's climbing, cycling and walking in the hills, the Conwy Valley railway for enthusiasts and visitors alike, and coastal resorts for more traditional 'bucket and spade' holidays.

Betws-y-Coed – The gateway to Snowdonia has many attractions of its own, not least the world famous Swallow Falls and Conwy Falls. Set on the edge of the Gwydyr Forest, and built around the meeting place of the Conwy and Llugwy rivers, Betws is an attractive, busy town which is home to the Snowdonia National Park Visitor Centre and the Conwy Valley Railway Museum and a Motor Museum. There is also a nine hole golf course. Guided walks, rock climbing and abseiling are amongst some of the activities available. Mountain bikes are available for hire and there is horse-riding too. At nearby Penmachno in the Wybrnant Valley is Tŷ Mawr, birthplace of Bishop William Morgan whose translation of the bible into Welsh ensured the survival of the language.

Betws-y-Coed

Capel Curig – This mountain village is one of the best known climbing and walking centres in Wales. It offers a good range of accommodation and shops selling mountaineering and outdoor wear. Plas-y-Brenin The National Mountain Centre is based here and provides expert tuition in outdoor activities.

Conwy – A truly memorable place to visit. The well-preserved medieval town walls – with 21 towers and three gateways – are unique in Wales. The castle itself is remarkable. The suspension bridge, built by Thomas Telford, is equally impressive and there are many more architectural reminders of the town's historic past. Other attractions include river cruises, pony trekking, the smallest house in Britain and the Elizabethan town house Plas Mawr. Nearby is Bodnant Garden and the start of the Cambrian Way long distance walking path.



Elusendai Llanrwst Llanrwst Almshouses

Llanrwst – This market town is an important part of the area's agricultural economy – and was once the largest wool market in North Wales. The town's best known landmark, the narrow humpback Pont Fawr, is believed to have been built by the 17th century architect Inigo Jones for Sir Richard Wynn. Nearby Gwydir Castle and Gwydir Uchaf Chapel, especially noted for its remarkable painted ceiling were also built by the Wynn family. Sir John Wynn also founded Llanrwst's almshouses which are now open to the public.

Llanfairfechan – This friendly resort makes an excellent touring base and has a long stretch of beach for children to enjoy. For bird watchers there is Traeth Lafan Nature Reserve and there are opportunities for angling, windsurfing, riding, golf and croquet. Ideal for hill-walking Penmaenmawr – Another seaside resort, a favourite with 19th Century Prime Minister, William Gladstone. The seafront, with its sandy beach, promenade, paddling pool and tremendous views ensure its popularity today.

Rowen – One of the prettiest villages in Wales. A steep climb takes visitors along the Roman Road and passes the Maen-y-Bardd megalithic burial chamber.

Trefriw – The health-giving properties of the iron-rich water in this spa village were discovered by the Romans and the Spa is now a popular attraction. A working mill on the banks of the Crafnant River turns local wool into tweeds and bedspreads. High above the village there is trout fishing at Llyn Crafnant and watersports at Llyn Geirionydd.

Betws-y-Coed is North Wales' most popular inland destination. Why does this small Welsh village have such an enviable reputation around the world? It could be its superlative setting surrounded by forests and magnificent mountain country with cascading waterfalls, hill-top lakes, river pools, ancient bridges and churches.
Or maybe it is the long tradition of welcoming visitors.

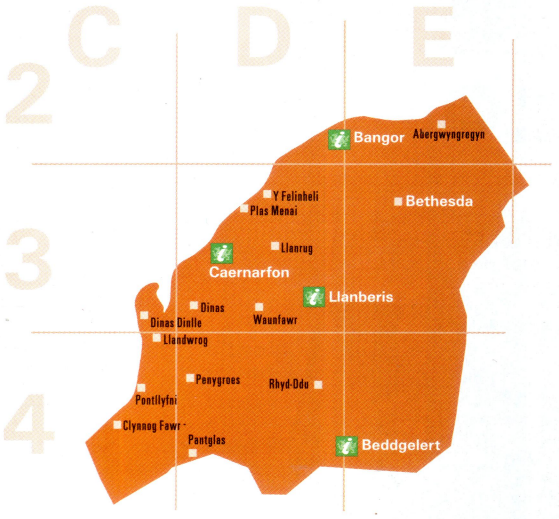
Bangor, Caernarfon, Llanberis a Phentrefi'r Wyddfa



Mount Snowdon, Yr Wyddfa in Welsh (meaning 'great tomb' and named after the legendary burial place of a giant slain by King Arthur) sits at the heart of this most visited region of Snowdonia.

From the rugged peaks of the mountains themselves, much favoured by walkers and serious climbers alike, through the passes and valleys to the old slate mining town of Bethesda, Royal Caernarfon and the university and cathedral city of Bangor, there is some of the most spectacular scenery and wild countryside in Wales.

Abergwyngregyn – just a few miles east of Bangor has the highest natural waterfalls in Wales. The 100 foot (30m) high cascades can freeze into an icy column in winter. The beach has Traeth Lafan Nature reserve.

Bangor – the biggest town, and only city, in Gwynedd has a cathedral which has been in continual use for longer than any other in Britain. The cathedral canonry is now a museum and art gallery. The recently restored Victorian Pier stretches halfway across the Menai Strait towards Ynys Môn.

Beddgelert – everyone who has ever visited Wales knows the story of the faithful hound Gelert that saved Llewelyn the Great's son from a wolf and was killed by the Prince. The dog's grave is still by the River Glaslyn. The village is spectacularly located on the Glaslyn and Colwyn rivers. Beddgelert won 'Wales in Bloom' small village section 2002.

Beddgelert

Bethesda – is an old slate town at the end of the Nant Ffrancon Pass, just below the Ogwen Falls and is home to the Ogwen Valley Mountain Rescue Team which recently featured on BBC 1. Lôn Las Ogwen is a specially prepared walk and mountain bike trail which runs through the valley.

The Walled Town of Caernarfon – the county town of Gwynedd. Its most famous of castles, restored during the 19th century, is the focal point of any visit. Designated a World Heritage Site the castles built by Edward 1 now houses the Museum of the Royal Welch Fusiliers. There is an impressive harbour and on the hill above the town are the ruins of Segontium, a five acre Roman fort. The Welsh Highland Railway terminates here and there is also a Maritime museum. There are two walks/cycle paths here – Lôn Las Eifion, which heads south out of the town and Lôn Las Menai to Felinheli. Plas Menai National Watersports Centre situated on the Menai Strait.

Castell Caernarfon Castle

Dinas Dinlle

Dinas Dinlle – this seaside village at the mouth of the Menai Strait boasts a commanding fort and miles of sandy beach and its own airport. Neighbouring Pontllyfni is another coastal village, with a shingle beach. Glynllifon Country Park is nearby with craft shops and country walks.

Llanberis – with its twin lakes is a jumping off point for most of the people who climb Snowdon and the Snowdon Mountain Railway is situated in the village. This former slate producing community is now geared up to the needs of serious climbers and walkers as well as other visitors. There is also the Electric Mountain attraction, which incorporates the biggest hydro-electric pumped storage station in Europe. Parc Padarn Country Park offers walks and craft shops and next door is the Welsh Slate Museum.

Tourism Growth Area - Development for the future - Caernarfon has recently been selected as one of only six regional tourism growth areas in Wales. The aim is to develop and further the potential of the historic walled town as a tourist destination.
